Advantages of Becoming a CRNI

If you ask any professional why he or she became I.V. certified, you will learn that the certification process is one of the most important steps in your career development. Thousands of associations use credentials to ensure that their professionals stand apart from others in their field. In healthcare, clinician certifications identify individuals that are dedicated to their specialty and are competent to perform up to widely-respected standards.

Infusion Therapy is one of the most sophisticated nursing specialties that is used in many clinical settings including oncology, transfusion, pharmacology, home care, and long-term care. The "CRNI" on your ID badge lets colleagues and patients know that you are on the cutting-edge of the specialty practice of Infusion Therapy.

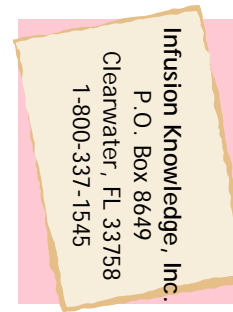

I.V. Certification enhances your Infusion Therapy skills and knowledge beyond the fundamental basics. For many CRNI's it leads to greater job responsibilities and/or opportunities. Becoming certified in Infusion Therapy also creates a sense of accomplishment and self-satisfaction. Most important, is the care that your patients receive as a consequence of your mastery of this specialty. For more information regarding certification go to www.incc1.org.

What Previous Students Have to Say...

"I would highly recommend that any nurse planning to take the CRNI exam take your review course. I can honestly say that without your course, I do not believe I would have passed this exam." Peggy Heisler, CRNI, Jonestown, PA

"I recently purchased study materials for the March 2011 CRNI exam and I am happy to report that I passed the exam. The content you provided was a very crucial element to my success! Your program is absolutely wonderful. It not only provided potential CRNI exam content review in a very user friendly format, it provided so many resources and reference material. I wish I had known about your program earlier. The "recommended" review material would never have prepared me like Infusion Knowledge did. Not only did it prepare me, it did it in 2 weeks!!" Juliane Shafer, CRNI - Macedon, NY
